Barbarian Hopes

FATHER GEORGE RUTLER

The film "Cabaret" is better known these days than the novel "The Berlin Stories" on which its screenplay is based.

Christopher Isherwood described the dissolute culture of a demoralized people, which gave rise to the National Socialists. Heroes in the German Church defied the Nazi outrages, and thousands became martyrs. Bishops who honored the apostolic witness included Felhauber, Galen, Preysing and Frings, while some others were satisfied to adjust to those barbaric times. The heroes had not much support from the papal nuncio, Cesare Orsenigo, who told Preysing: "Charity is well and good but the greatest charity is not to make problems for the Church." The German bishops made a better showing than the Tudor bishops who caved in to Henry VIII, save for John Fisher, who became the only saint among them.

Pope Benedict XVI, who lived during those hard days in Germany, said in 2002: "Heroic virtue properly speaking does not mean that one has done great things by oneself, but rather that in one's life there appear realities which the person has not done himself, because he has been transparent and ready for the work of God." This is the universal call to holiness of which Saint Francis de Sales preached so solidly.

The German cardinal Walter Kasper has described a "Revolution of Tenderness and Love" that would seem paler than the bold summons of Pope Benedict and St. Francis de Sales. In 2014, Cardinal Kasper said: "Heroism is not for the average Christian." Many seem to have accepted that, for the German Church is in demographic meltdown: priestly ordinations have dropped by half in the last decade, and Mass attendance has plummeted to 10.4%. This contrasts with the amazing growth of the Church in Africa, but Cardinal Kasper has said: "They should not tell us too much what we have to do."

Last Sunday a parade down Fifth Avenue with its raucous obscenities surpassed in decadence anything described in The Berlin Stories. At the same time, I was accompanying a group of visiting "wounded warriors" from Walter Reed Hospital unable to get through the traffic. One young soldier strove to carry his luggage with two prosthetic arms, while trying not to look at the street vulgarity. Such heroism is precisely what bewilders those who take pride only in their lack of heroism. Hilaire Belloc wrote:

The Barbarian hopes — and that is the very mark of him — that he can have his cake and eat it too. He will consume what civilisation has slowly produced after generations of selection and effort, but he will not be at pains to replace such goods, nor indeed has he a comprehension of the virtue that has brought them into being. Discipline seems to him irrational, on which account he is ever marveling that civilisation, should have offended him with priests and soldiers . . . .

Qué pecados impiden comulgar?

JULIO DE LA VEGA-HAZAS

¿Se puede comulgar si has cometido pecados veniales?

San Pablo expresó con contundencia que no todos están en condiciones de recibir la Comunión: Examínesse, por tanto, cada uno a sí mismo, y entonces coma del pan y beba del cáliz, porque el que come y bebe sin discernir el Cuerpo, come y bebe su propia condenación (I Cor 11, 28-29). Estas palabras ponen de relieve la gravedad del asunto, pero no proporcionan un criterio claro de cuándo uno es digno y cuándo no. Por eso, como tantas otras, esta cuestión también fue sometida a debate. Da la impresión, sin embargo, que los destinatarios de la carta –los corintios- ya tenían alguna idea al respecto. Es pues importante ver las fuentes conocidas de la vida de la Iglesia primitiva. A finales del siglo I o principios del II se escribió la llamada Didache (o “Doctrina de los Doce Apóstoles”), en la que se habla bastante de la Eucaristía. Tras señalar que el sacramento es solo para los bautizados, añade la siguiente frase: Quien sea santo, acceda; quien lo sea menos, haga penitencia. Aunque necesite una ulterior precisión, sigue siendo un criterio válido, a la luz del cual se entiende lo que está establecido. Lo propio es recibir la comunión cuando ya hay una comunión del alma con el Señor.

Se podría objetar, y con razón, ¿pero quién puede decir que es santo? Libre de todo pecado, nadie. Por eso el acercamiento a la Comunión debe ser penitencial, para purificarnos cuanto podamos. Lo propio es recibir la comunión cuando ya hay una comunión del alma con el Señor. Ahora bien, hay diversas situaciones, como también hay distintos tipos de pecados. El pecado mortal rompe del todo esa comunión, y en este caso la penitencia requerida pasa por la recepción del sacramento de la Penitencia como condición previa.

Por eso establece el Código de Derecho Canónico que quien tenga conciencia de hallarse en pecado grave, no celebre la Misa ni comulgue el Cuerpo del Señor sin acudir antes a la confesión sacramental (c. 916) (las excepciones se refieren a necesidades sin posibilidad de recibirlo, en cuyo caso debe haber un acto de contrición perfecta y el propósito de confesarse cuanto antes: o sea, en todo caso se recibe en gracia de Dios, aunque no haya más remedio que posponer la confesión). Una aclaración al respecto puede ser pertinente: no hay penitencia verdadera ni confesión válida sin propósito de enmienda; es lógico, en caso contrario sería una pantomima. Esto sirve para entender por qué no pueden acceder a la Comunión personas que están y quieren seguir estando en una situación habitual de pecado. Queda el pecado venial. Nadie escapa de cometer alguno, y pretender estar libre de todo pecado venial resulta presuntuoso. En la historia de la Iglesia existió un puritanismo católico, llamado jansenismo (lo creó un tal Cornelius Jansen), que en este sentido restringía mucho la comunión. Fue rechazado por la Iglesia, pero dejó sentir su influencia, hasta que el Papa San Pío X borró sus vestigios hace un siglo. Con razón: no va por ahí la penitencia requerida. En estos casos –cuando se está en gracia- la penitencia es la interior, la cual se incluye en la liturgia. El pecado venial no impide la Comunión –al contrario, es alimento interior que da fuerzas para combatirlo-, pero, a la vez, para participar dignamente en los sagrados misterios... comencemos por reconocer nuestros pecados. Palabras familiares para quien asiste a Misa, que van seguidas por un acto de contrición de lo más completo. Luego, la preparación inmediata nos recuerda que vamos a comulgar como invitados y que no somos dignos de recibirle; en cierto modo, también son palabras de contrición. Es interesante comprobar que, en la celebración de la Comunión fuera de la Santa Misa, la liturgia es mucho más breve, pero incluye estas dos partes penitenciales, las mismas.

En resumen. Para comulgar, hay que estar en gracia de Dios. Aún estándolo, nunca somos dignos del todo de recibir al Señor. Eso no es obstáculo para comulgar, pero la dignidad del sacramento postula que procuremos hacernos lo más dignos posible.
